Hard Work. Sacrifice. Giving Back to Our Community.

I grew up in a working-class, immigrant family, attended local public schools, and learned the values of hard work, community service, and leading by example from my parents.

My dad, Ralph Rodriguez, was a Green Card Veteran who served military duty in Vietnam.

After the war, my parents moved to the Northeast Valley, and my dad was one of the first Latinos to serve in the L.A. Fire Department after the consent decree.

As a decorated firefighter, he devoted thirty-three years of his life to saving the lives of others.

Inspired by my father's work helping at-risk youth and mentoring young firefighters, I co-founded the FIRE Academy, an afterschool program to create career pathways for local at-risk youth.

Serving My Community.

I served as Chief Deputy at LAUSD, partnering with community colleges and non-profits to expand after-school and early childhood education programs.

As a non-profit-director, I delivered $75 million in affordable housing and created a mortgage protection program that helped thousands of people keep their homes during the Recession.

I brought more accountability to City Hall, created local jobs, and secured economic investment for the Valley as Los Angeles Public Works Commissioner.

As a community leader, parent, and lifelong resident of the Northeast Valley, I am deeply committed to ensuring that our communities live up to their full potential.

With a record of effective leadership, grassroots community support, and the values instilled in me by my immigrant family, I will always fight for our families and deliver for our neighborhoods.

As voting begins this week with ballots arriving in homes and continues at polling places on Election Day on March 7, I humbly ask for your support.
